

Pitzer's Native American Summer Pipeline To College

In association with Western University of Health Sciences

Tradition For Life • Education For Our Future

July 29-August 12, 2012

What is Pitzer's Native American Summer Pipeline To College?

Pitzer College, and Western University of Health Sciences are proud to sponsor a summer program that supports Native American students' transition from high school to college. This free two-week on campus program for college bound students grades 10 through 12 will encourage and prepare students to invest in continuing their education.

Native American Scholars and Elders will contribute cultural knowledge and traditional ways of learning while partnering with a talented and enthusiastic team of professors and mentors.

This valuable opportunity will build upon the necessary academic and social skills needed for those entering a university environment.

Program Highlights!

Stimulating Classes

Health Career Opportunities

Exciting Field Trips

Native American Film Series

Cultural Workshops/Song/Dance/Art/Theatre

Media Studies and Publishing Your Own Digital Book

Indian Country Today- Tradition and Progress

Family Day...and much more

NEW SKILLS, NEW CONFIDENCE, NEW FRIENDS A NEW FUTURE!

Western University
OF HEALTH SCIENCES

The discipline of learning. The art of caring.

For more information please visit us at www.nativeyouth2college.org or contact scott_scoggins@pitzer.edu / 909 607 8184